be allowed when 90 per cent of the country's adult population have completed their Covid-19 vaccination.

Khairy said the responsibility now lies in the hands of the people who must comply with all public health measures as well as standard operating procedures which are still in force to curb Covid-19 infections.

"If you really appreciate what the frontliners have been doing for the last one and a half years, you will be responsible, self-aware, (and) you will ensure that you will take care of your health.
