

Sharman Arumugam hails from Seremban and is the middle child – and therefore left to his own devices and mischief which explains his penchant of doing unconventional things. He did relatively well academically but was better known amongst his schoolmates for indulging in too many extracurricular activities. He was on the school Prefectural Board, represented his school in swimming, football, tae kwan-do and even sepak takraw but eventually settled to Captain his school's cricket team, played for Negeri Sembilan and was shortlisted for the National team – but his parents then stepped in and manage to persuade him to focus in his studies.

Professionally, he is Chartered Accountant (Malaysia), a fellow of CPA Australia, and an ASEAN Chartered Professional Accountant. He was the President of CPA Australia (Malaysia Division) and was a Council Member of the Malaysian Institute of Accountants (MIA) for 2019-2020.

He is currently the Country Partner of a public practice firm in KL which is affiliated to a worldwide Japanese corporate services group. He specializes in corporate advisory services such as corporate valuations, mergers and acquisitions and insolvency workouts. He also serves on Boards of Public Listed Companies and a few Japanese Multinational Companies in Malaysia.

He loves traveling and has multiple outdoor pursuits. He has completed in the IronMan 70.3, other Olympic distance Triathlons and quite a few other outdoor events. He is also an avid scuba diver, rides superbikes for fun and has trekked remote trails when he needs to get away from it all.

He has 2 lovely kids who are currently pursuing their undergraduate degrees. They are equally bewildered why their dad does the things he does, but nevertheless, agree that their dad is just a curious man who wishes to add color into his life until his knees gives up!
